Whitehorse, Yukon, Sunday, March 5, 1972.

Vol. I, No. I.

ARCTIC WINTER GAMES mountain climbers pose for cameraman Thursday morning just prior to leaving for assault on unnamed, unclimbed peak 150 miles from Whitehorse. They are left to right: Jim Boyde, Northwest Territories; Scott Foster, Alaska; Lloyd Ryder (pilot); Monty Alford (expedition leader from Whitehorse); Louis Lambert, Arctic Quebec and Martyn Williams, Yukon Territories. The team is expected to reach the peak of the 10,160 foot mountain some time today.

GAMES' CLIMBERS CLOSING IN

A MESSAGE FROM THE COMMISSIONER

Northern dialects include many expressions of greeting. Our native Canadians, and our neighbours from Greenland, the Soviet Union and Alaska, who have gathered with us for the second Arctic Winter Games, each have their own unique words of welcome. Many of these words I am unfamiliar with. Others I cannot pronounce. Words, however, often do not adequately describe what one feels.

This is one of those times. I do not have the proper words but I can assure you that well known feeling of northern hospitality is here.

I am especially pleased to see that Arctic Quebec has joined us, that Greenland is showing such an interest and that the Soviet Union is also represented.

Because of the great distances involved, chances for northerners to work together, to play together and even to talk together are all too infrequent. As well as providing a chance for those living in the north to get to meet on a competitive level, events such as The Arctic Winter Games also allow us to get to know each other on a personal level.

Throughout the world people living in the polar region are a hardy lot and athletic events such as these help sharpen natural skills. They are also a friendly lot and such gatherings increase understanding and foster lasting friendships.

Northern cold seems to produce an inner warmth. I hope all our visitors, both competitors and spectators, feel this warmth while in Whitehorse and enjoy their stay with us in Yukon.

James Smith,
Commissioner.

The Arctic Winter Games were expected to reach new heights today - 10,160 feet.

At approximately 12 noon, Whitehorse's veteran mountain climber, Monty Alford, and his four-man Arctic Winter Games' climbing team were expected to reach the peak of the unclimbed, unnamed mountain on the west side of the Lowell Glacier in the Mount Kennedy group.

By press time late last night, the group had reached the 8,000-foot level of the peak and were climbing. The five-member party left for the area Thursday morning and it was estimated it would take them five days to accomplish the climb. Fine weather conditions have hastened the journey.

Upon reaching the peak, Alford and his climbers will plant an Arctic Winter Games flag and officially name the mountain. The name is still a secret, but it is speculated that it will be named Mount Ulu, after the gold medal awards to winners of events in the Arctic Winter Games.

The expedition was the brain-child of Games' general manager Roy Reber, who approached Alford with the idea of the climb accompanied by one representative from the four areas competing in the Games, March 6-11. His Excellency, Roland Michener, Governor-General of Canada, will officially open the second Arctic Winter Games Monday evening at 8 p.m. aboard the S.S. Klondike. A colorful athlete's parade through downtown Whitehorse will precede the official opening.

Members of Alford's expedition are: Louis Lambert of Arctic Quebec, a Provincial Government engineer; Jim Boyde of the Northwest Territories, a student at Simon Fraser University; Martyn Williams of the Yukon Territory, a school teacher; and Scott Fraser of the State of Alaska, manager of a TV station.

Chief air plane pilot for the trip is Lloyd Ryder of Whitehorse, a veteran bush pilot.

The team left for the mountain, located 150 miles west of Whitehorse, at 10:30 a.m. Thursday. Alford, two other climbers and Ryder left by Beaver aircraft while the remaining two members of the expedition left by truck, containing the expedition's heavy equipment. They met at Haines Junction at Mile 1016 of the Alaska Highway and proceeded to a base camp from there.

Base camp was established at 4,000 feet. Daily contact with Whitehorse was maintained via Yukon Forestry and Canadian National Telecommunications.

Meanwhile, athletes from the four competing areas begin arriving today for the largest sporting event ever held in the north. By late tonight, all 902 athletes competing in the Games will be bedded down in the athlete's village.

Twelve sports will be contested during the next six days—three more than at the first Games in Yellowknife two years ago. The sports are badminton, basketball, curling, figure skating, hockey, shooting, cross country skiing, table tennis, volleyball, judo, alpine skiing, and wrestling.

The Northwest Territories won the team title at the first Arctic Winter Games compiling 34 gold, 20 silver and 10 bronze medals for 661 points. The State of Alaska followed with 529 points with the Yukon Territory third with 410 points.

Interest in the Whitehorse Arctic Winter Games has spread far and wide. A 12-member contingent from Greenland has been here since last week. They will observe and take part in demonstration sports during the Games.

It was confirmed Friday that Russia will also send two observers to the Games. They will arrive Tuesday.

An army of volunteers (more than 1,000) has spent up to two years piecing together the myriads of details to launch these second Arctic Winter Games. Whitehorse has demonstrated what community response really means.

SPORT CANADA DIRECTORATE LEND A HELPING HAND

HON. JOHN MUNRO

The national and international reputation of the Arctic Winter Games as a vehicle for promoting goodwill and athletic incentive for northern athletes is growing rapidly.

Support from all levels of Government is being offered so that the efforts of the hundreds of Whitehorse and Yukon inhabitants involved in Games' preparation will insure the participants seven days of competition, fun and festivities they will never forget.

Some of the strongest Governmental support has come through the Sport Canada Directorate of the Department of National Health and Welfare, under the Hon. John Munro.

Led by Ian Howard, Directorate representative for British Columbia and Alberta, the Sport Canada team has been assisting Games' management in organizing the many activities that surrounds what will be the largest single sporting event ever staged above the 60th parallel.

While a $125,000 Sport Canada grant has gone a long way towards solving the financial requirements of the Games, Directorate personnel are giving further assistance to General Manager

Roy Reber and his staff in such areas as protocol, media accreditation, competition results and the publication of a games newspaper.

Top Canadian athletes such as former world figure skating champion Petra Burka, world sprint record holder Harry Jerome and former Ottawa Roughrider halfback star Ron Stewart will be in Whitehorse with Sport Canada Director Lou Lefave. All will represent the Directorate at many of the competitions and award ceremonies.

In addition to the assistance that has been given through Mr. Howard's staff during the months of intensive preparation, the Directorate has undertaken to produce The Daily Ulu News in order that visitors, athletes and the people of Whitehorse will be informed of day to day results and activities as they happen.

As General Manager Reber put it:

"The technical and financial assistance offered by the Sport Canada personnel, who have worked with us in Whitehorse, has been a major contribution towards the success of the Arctic Winter Games."

DOG SLED RACES SET FOR GAMES

If you happen to be walking down by the banks of the Yukon River around 10 o'clock Monday morning, and you notice human forms bundled up in bed rolls, don't be surprised.

You will be witnessing the start of a dogsled race. The races, under the management of Ron Chambers, promise to be an exciting addition to the Arctic Games' Special Events Program.

The program worked out by Chambers will take place behind the Whitepass Railway Station between the hours of 10 and 12 noon Monday, Thursday and Friday.

There are two types of racing to be seen, the bedroll race and the tent race. In the bedroll race, competitors get out of bedrolls as quickly as possible, pack them on their sleds and race down the back over a one and one-half mile course.

In the tent race, spectators will witness the five-dog teams covering the same course. At the start and end of the three miles, drivers attempt to taken down and raise their tents in the shortest time possible. The first team with their tents standing is the winner.

As an additional highlight to the races, it is hoped that some of the dignitaries in town for the Games will participate in the bedroll race Monday.

A host of other outstanding features are also included in the Games' Special Events Program. The largest continuing event will be "Crafts North of 60", which will cover two floors of one wing of F.H. Collins High School in a total of 10 rooms.

There will be more than 30 craftsmen from various Games' areas working on everything from fur sewing to soapstone and ivory carving to totem pole carving. Yukoners will demonstrate snowshoe weaving, one of the most unique arts in the world.

The always-popular native sports competition will begin Tuesday, 3 p.m., at Whitehorse Elementary and then continue Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Christ The King Elementary, also at 3 p.m. On Saturday, the native sports demonstrations move back to Whitehorse Elementary, beginning at 2 p.m.

Special Events Program gets underway this evening (8 p.m.) at F.H. Collins Auditorium. The dramatization of an Eskimo legend, Neaghok (The Head), will be presented by a group of students from the Samuel Heame Secondary School in Inuvik. Also on the program are the popular Chilkat Dancers from Haninest Port Chilkot, Alaska.

On the program, too, will be a number of Eskimo Games demonstrations by members of Northern Games teams from Inuvik and Alaska.

A preview of the Special Events Program will be held Monday evening, beginning at 9 p.m., at the Jim Light Memorial Arena. The one-hour program will start immediately following the Games' official opening ceremonies at the S.S. Klondike.

TWO SIGHTS

Overall Arctic Winter Games passes are available in two locations in Whitehorse. The pass entitles the bearer to all events (special and athletic) during the Games, March 6-11.

Passes are $10 for adults and $5 for students and available at either the Second Avenue office of the Arctic Winter Games or the Main Street Information Office (former Rendezvous office).

Tickets to events will also be available at the venues and cost $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Those sports charging admission are: Basketball, volleyball, judo, wrestling, hockey and figure skating.

TAKING A PRACTICE RUN for the dog sled races Monday, Thursday and Friday are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Erlam of Whitehorse. The races will be staged at 10 a.m. those days on the Yukon River, below the White Pass Depot. At least six teams have indicated they will participate in the races, one of the highlights of the Arctic Winter Games' Special Events Program.

NICOLE aux JEUX

REPREND AVEC la même joyeuse inconscience, cette même chronique coiffée de son même titre farfelu: les "2 colonnes à la une" qu'elle inaugurerait pour les Jeux d'hiver de Saskatoon. C'était en 1971. Voilà qu'en 1972, la chronique ajoutera à son existence spasmodique encore six jours de vie intense. Six jours de fêtes nordiques, celles des Jeux d'hiver d'Arctique 1972. Du lundi au samedi, vous y retrouverez: propos insolites, nouvelles en vrac, impressions personnelles, menus potins et, bien sûr, quelques rares erreurs... Pourquoi pas des erreurs, si elles sont jolies? Une ravissante erreur c'est parfois un très grand chef-d'oeuvre. - paraît-il...

A ENTENDU DIRE QUE l'équipe du Québec est arrivée. Au total la délégation comprendrait 80 membres, dont 60 athlètes (badminton, curling, tir-à-la-carabine, tennis de table, basketball, volleyball et lutte). Se souvient de l'entrée spectaculaire que faisant les athlètes québécois à Saskatoon, dans leur splendide uniforme à la cossak; voilà qu'encore à Whitehorse, le bleu et le blanc du Québec se sont fait remarqués...

A VU LE DEPART des quatre alpinistes (Québec, Alaska, Yukon et Territoires du Nord-Ouest). C'était jeudi 2 mars et l'équipe entreprenait pour la première fois l'une des montagnes qui regardent en surplomb la vallée de Whitehorse. Montagne, jusqu'à ce jour sans nom et qu'on se propose de baptiser mont Ulu C'est le nom du couteau qu'utilisent les esquimaux de la région pour tanner les peaux de bêtes. L'ulu a du reste inspiré la forme particulière des médailles qui seront remises aux vainqueurs des épreuves. A la tombée du journal dans la nuit de samedi (4 mars), l'équipe en était à 2,000 pieds du sommet. L'ai lu; l'apas vu.

APPREND qu'en plus des Esquimaux de l'Arctique canadien (Yukon, Territoires et Québec), et ceux de l'Alaska (E.-U.) on aurait en plus invité la participation du Danemark (Groëland), de l'Islande, de la Russie et sans doute celle des Lapons en Finlande. Les athlètes du Groëland sont arrivés depuis le 1er mars. Les Russes ont délégué deux observateurs dont on annonce l'arrivée pour mardi; l'Islande et la Finlande n'ont pas encore donné suite.

REMET EN QUESTION tout ce qu'elle croyait savoir, sur les régions polaires. Pourtant les religieuses au couvent répétaient avec une telle conviction que... "l'Arctique est la région géographique qui se trouve au nord du Canada... ses habitants doivent pour survivre au vent au froid à l'ours blanc et aux glaciers menaçants, manger du gras de phoque et de morse, même, parfois... l'Arctique est un pays où par milliers il se trouve des petits esquimaux à convertir avec tous les sous noirs des petits canadiens religieux du sud... Les Jeux font découvrir un Arctique aux dimensions nouvelles.

A CROISE dans le foyer de l'hôtel nul autre que la vedette-étoile des Canadiens, Jean BELIVEAU; immédiatement après le Grand Jean, a reconnu la championne mondiale au patinage artistique, Petra Burka médaille olympique des années 60; le freineur de l'équipe canadienne de bobleigh aux Jeux de Sapporo David Richardson attend l'arrivée du sprinter (encore un médaille d'or des années 60) Harry Jérôme.

A SOURI à un enfant, à un autre... puis un autre encore; ce sont des enfants de l'Arctique; tous ont ce même regard; ils semblent toujours attendre. Attendre quoi? le dégel des marées de glace ou celui... des frontières raciales?

ATHLETES FROM the Greenland contingent to the Arctic winter Games study their cross country gear after a practice session at Camp Takhini Saturday. N. W. T. council representative, Lena Pederson (second from right), is the Games interpreter assigned to the team. The 12 Greenlanders were the first participants from outside the Yukon to arrive in Whitehorse for the Arctic Games.

HIS EXCELLENCY, Roland Michener, Governor General of Canada will officially open the Arctic Winter Games in Whitehorse on March 6. The ceremony will take place on the deck of the paddle wheeler, the S.S. Klondike which played an important part in the transportation history of the Yukon. The vessel was restored as an historic site on the bank of the Yukon River.
